

TURNED HER NOSE UP AT THE COURT

Magistrate Crane Rebuked Mrs. Cory, Who Sniffed at His Decision.

FINED HER COMPANION.

Wouldn't Listen to Her Scornful Plea that Husband Banned Only $7 a Week.

If a husband cannot support his wife on seven dollars a week, if she breaks away and supports herself, and if she lives on the street, walking with a dapper young man, is she justified in remarking scornfully to the dapper young man "I want to see you?" And then is she self-supporting wife justified in jumping on her seven-dollar-a-week husband's hat, while the dapper young man dusts a dozen or more square yards of cobble stones with him, only pausing to allow said wife an occasional uppercut and side slap?

This is not a syllogism, nor a Japanese thought exercise. It was a more or less human interest problem laid before Magistrate Crane in the Centre Street Court to-day by Frederick W. Cory, who said he was a clerk employed by the Prudential Life Insurance Company. He had summoned Mrs. F. W. Cory, who is pretty, but not petite, before the bar.

Man in Court Too.

He had also summoned August Krug, of No. 121 Fifth Avenue, who was dressed as if he lived further down on the swaggar thoroughfare. Though dapper, Mr. Krug needed no shoulder pads. Whenever he crooked his elbow his chest rounded out like pumpkins.

Cory said his present abode was at No. 121 Bloomfield avenue, Hoboken. His wife lives at No. 121 Ninth street, Jersey City. She is employed as superintendent of nurses at the Sydenham Hospital, No. 33 East One Hundred and Sixty-second street.

"On Sunday afternoon," related the husband, "I was passing Church and Cortlandt streets when I saw my wife walking with this young man. I informed him that he was walking with my wife, and—"

"He said 'Twenty-seven, Your Honor,' interrupted the wife, "and he only came $7 a week, if he does work in an insurance company."

"I asked them to separate," ran on the young husband. "My wife and I have been separated for three years, but she has no right to be walking on a Sunday afternoon with a young man. Instead of separating and going their several ways, she knocked off my hat and then jumped on it. Incidentally this young man bumped me on the nose and over the pavement. And whenever she could, my wife got in a whack."

Scorns $7-a-Week Man.

"But he earns only $7 a week," said the pretty young woman again. "Besides, my meeting with this gentleman was purely accidental." Mrs. Cory accompanied this exclamation with a tilt of her nose.

"Don't you turn up your nose in this court," cried Magistrate Crane. "You were in the wrong, and you know it. No matter what your husband earns, a young married woman has no right to go gallivanting around with a young man."

"But," interposed the wife, smiling again.

"No more buts," thundered the Court. "and don't you dare to turn up your nose again. I am going to fine this young man $1, and have a good mind to fine you. Any other magistrate would certainly punish you for turning up your nose. I am inclined to let you go, only be more careful in the future about accepting young men's escorts."

The young man thereupon paid the fine and left the court in company with Mrs. Cory. Neither looked in the direction of Mr. Cory, who showed no inclination of pressing his way to their vicinity.

"DEAD MAN" TURNS UP.

New Yorker Reported Killed Is Having Fun with His Obsequies.

(Special to The Evening World.) STROUDSBURG, Pa., Nov. 22.—Edward Lloyd, of New York City, who was reported dead, has returned from the Pike County woods, and to-day sent newspapers containing his obituary to his friends.

Lloyd went hunting, and a report got abroad that he had been accidentally killed.

FALL OF THE HOUSE OF MIRTH.

BY WALTER A. SINCLAIR.

(Al Field's House of Mirth is closed and for sale and legislative entertainments are ended.—News Item.)

What a sorrow radiator Is the gloomy legislator As he reads the gloomy tidings in the news. With a good hard winter sighted And a source of income blighted He is densely populated with the blues. Gone the bright white night of laughter And the wealthy morning after. Gone the winning nights when dealers kindly dozed.

Ah! the good old times are by When they won without a try, For, alas! the good old House of Mirth is closed.

Past the times the lobby's joker Let the statesmen win at poker; Past the purple nights of fancy champagne spreads When the statesmen, full of bubbles, Seeing everything in doubles, With their boots on were tucked into cozy beds. Good-by wine like water flowing, Knowing no bar bill was owing Just as long as any strike bills were opposed; But the good times now are over, And they're clear out of the clover, For the generous, kind House of Mirth is closed.

Oh, that cheerful house of laughter, Where each grafter who was after The marmoset dined and wined in princely style.

Where the smiles were bright and sunny, And 'twas funny how the money Seemed to seek the legislator's winning plea. Now the House of Mirth is mirthless, And the statesmen's talents worthless. Now the cupboard by the Yellow Dog's not nosed. Gone are golden hours of pleasure, They must seek new Fields of treasure, For the dandy, good old House of Mirth is closed.

PASSENGERS JOIN IN PICKPOCKET CHASE.

Police Believe That in Arrest Made To-Day They Have Captured One of Bold Gang.

For a good while pickpockets have been operating in west-side surface cars uptown. The police think they got one of the gang to-day.

Gustav Holle, of No. 42 Central park West, was riding on an Eighty-sixth street cross-town car when a man lifted his wallet from his breast pocket and jumping off the rear platform ran south on Central Park West. Holle and most of the other passengers gave chase.

At Eighty-second street Detective Sergeant McDonald tripped the fugitive and sat on him until the rest of the procession arrived. Holle's pocketbook containing $7 was found in a vacant lot where the thief had thrown it in his flight. The prisoner gave his name as David Walsh, thirty-eight years old, of No. 33 Johnson street, Brooklyn.

Magistrate Barlow in the West Side Court held him for a hearing.

NORWAY'S KING RECEIVES.

Haakon Sends Thanks to Roosevelt for His Greeting.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Nov. 22.—King Haakon VII. and Queen Maud hold a reception at the Diplomatic Corps to-day. Talking to the American Minister, Thomas J. O'Brien, the new King of Norway asked him to convey his warmest greetings and thanks to President Roosevelt and the American Government for the President's recent kind message.

THE NERVES.

Are the mainspring of the human system.

The Stomach and Blood

Nourishes the body, while the Liver, Bowels and Kidneys carry off the waste and impure matter.

With these organs working naturally we enjoy good health, but if they become disturbed, weakened or impaired, distress, misery, pain and disease appear.

These important functions and organs can be kept strong, active and natural and if disturbed, weak or diseased can soon be made normal, active and well by the use of that most remarkable and wonderful restorative remedy

New corset fashions.

THEY indicate a "some-what higher" bust line—just high enough to act as a substantial support. The waist should curve. Such is the contour required for the latest modes in women's gowns.

Ultra Bust-Curving Waist models of American Lady Corsets are designed especially to provide that contour. There are various models for slender figures, models for medium figures, and models for full figures.

Tailor-made suits at 29.75

BEFORE the Horse Show we sold these beautiful suits up to as high as $45, and now they're $29.75. We have decided to sell at reduced prices stylish suits, costumes and wraps, and these suits are among the foremost values in the great collection.

Broadcloth suits, 34.75.

Fine broadcloth, worsted and fancy mixed suits—several models—blouse style—lined with soft satin or taffeta.

It is decidedly the suit chance of the season. Quality of the fashions, the linings, style and workmanship are the same as belonging to regular $45 suits.

You'll not have a particle of trouble being fitted, for there are a great many of them, and nearly every style, color and fashion is included. If you want something exclusive and smart in every line be sure to see these suits. Only one or two of a kind in any one style or color—made by the most expert tailors, and they sold originally as high as $45. One price for choice—

Broadcloth suits, 24.75.

Best shown throughout the season. Not just the blue and black as usually shown for that price, but all the high colors, such as mulberry, plum, wine, and green; coat 1/2 length; tight fitting—velvet collar and turtleneck cuffs. Coat single breasted—buttoned through—plaited skirt.

Kersey coats, 10.00.

Short, tight fitting, in black—flat stitched seams—notched collar or collarless—lined with soft black satin—all sizes.

Motor coats, 18.75.

Heavy soft gray mixtures—very loose and boxy, or new empire styles—fancy effect collar, trimmed with black velvet and fancy braid.

Russian pony coats at $79.

THESE are the same grade of coats that the exclusive furriers sell at $110 and up. They're scarce—the demand having grown more rapidly than the supply, since the development of the automobile habit.

Men's broadcloth suits, $39.50, lined with the very best quality sabled cone, richly lustrous, in fur; large collars of fine Persian lamb, whole skins (not pieced), a gentleman's coat in every particular.

Men's broadcloth coats, $75, lined with hamster; large collars of very fine Persian lamb.

We were so fortunate as to secure several hundred of these splendid garments from a furrier who was slow to realize how valuable Russian pony was becoming.

They're the ideal Automobile Coats—42 inches in length—beautifully finished and lined—made with large shawl collar of the finest Hudson Bay beavers—a garment that would be considered cheap if we asked $110. For this sale at $79.

Nearseal coats, $35.

The newest box front models in women's nearseal coats at lowest prices in New York, $5.00, $5.00, $9.50, $5.00 and $9.00.

Men's fur lined coats.

The shells are made by expert tailors. The fur linings are put together and attached to the shells by our own experienced furriers. Skill and intelligence are back of every coat, and the styles are the latest, all coats being exact copies of the foremost men's fashions of London, Paris and Berlin.

Men's broadcloth suits, $40.50, of the goods, lined with natural dark muskrat skins; finest Persian lamb collars; very swaggar.

German broadcloth coats, $85, lined with the choicest selected muskrat skins, very fine quality Persian lamb collars.

Women's Ypsilanti underwear, half

THIS has been a wonderfully successful sale, but it ought to be, for the values are so unusual that few who read the announcement will hesitate about buying. The brand "Ypsilanti" tells you all you need to know about the quality. There is just one reason why we can sell these union suits at half price, and that is that some pieces that were shown in the New York offices of the Ypsilanti factory. Local dealers wishing to place orders inspected them. That's all the harm they have suffered from being samples. Looked at, that's all.

They are sample pieces—

The workings on these garments are all by hand. They have full fashioned seams. If you were to see the manufacturer's list prices you'd find that the prices are double what we ask in almost every instance. Could put these garments into regular stock, and earn the usual profit, but we want our customers to share with us in this grand treat. Tell your friends about this sale. They will thank you for the information.
